FOREWORD

Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD) is an important contagious transboundary animal disease (TAD) in the world, caused by different serotypes and many genotypes of FMD virus, posing constant threat to livestock husbandry and food security locally and globally. FMD is widely prevalent in most parts of Africa, West Eurasia, Asia and the Middle East. About 70 countries are free from FMD but always under threat of virus incursion from endemic countries. Spread of the disease occurs through contaminated air, water, feed, fomites, livestock movement and trade etc. The burden of FMD in developing countries is usually underestimated. The disease threatens livelihood security and associated with reduced productive performance of farm animals and economic losses. As suggested by FAO, with a fast-moving infection, surveillance is essential and building up national and regional epidemi-surveillance capacities is a priority. The direct economic impact of FMD is attributed to drop in milk production, abortions, and death of young calves. The indirect adverse effect includes loss of draught power, the cost of treatment, trade embargo by FMD free countries and implementation of FMD control programme. In India, annual direct loss is estimated at Rs. 20,000 (about 3.5bn USD) crore. Indirect loss due to trade barrier could be much more. Controlling FMD and reducing its economic impact would improve livelihood of farming community and will have huge impact on both FMD endemic and non-endemic countries. As we know the FMD control strategy includes: (1) Mass awareness (2) Mass vaccination (3) Post vaccinal Seromonitoring (4) Serological Surveillance (5) Disease detection and reporting in real-time (5) Management of risks in virus spread and prevent escape of virus from laboratories. Govt. of India has taken lots of initiatives to control the disease in India. Recently the Union Cabinet has granted considerable amount of money on priority basis to control FMD in next five years by mass vaccination and subsequent eradication of the disease from India. Post vaccination seromonitoring is essential to assess the efficacy of vaccine or vaccination in the fields. Sero surveillance is essential to understand the prevalence of the disease. Considering the huge livestock resource of the country, two-stage sampling plan is very important for systematic collection of representative samples and thereafter testing in laboratories. The sampling plan provided in this bulletin is the guideline for collection of samples from different parts of the country to be tested for FMD vaccine induced antibody response under FMDCP and National FMD Sero surveillance. I thank the Directors and Scientists of ICAR-NIVEDI and ICAR-D FMD for taking initiatives to prepare this useful bulletin to be used in FMDCP of the country.

Foreword

Foot and mouth disease (FMD) is a highly contagious viral disease primarily of cattle, buffalo and pigs. Other animals such as sheep, goats and several other species of wild/captive animals including elephant are also susceptible to the disease/virus. The disease has been a major constraint for international trade of livestock and animal products.

In order to control FMD and to minimize the losses, it is necessary to strengthen the National FMD control programme in line with Guidelines laid down by FAOs-Progressive Control Pathway (PCP). For FMD control proper vaccination schedule and monitoring of post vaccination activities is essential. Software for generating OIE recommended two stage sampling plan which takes into account of sensitivity and specificity of diagnostic tests, systematic collection of random, representative and independent samples for disease surveillance, prevalence and monitoring of vaccine induced antibody response under FMD Control Programme (FMDCP) is essentially required.

I am happy that ICAR-National Institute of Veterinary Epidemiology and Disease Informatics (NIVEDI) has also brought out a bulletin of sampling plan in particular for collection of samples under National FMD Control Programme, which would be more useful for getting the critical information regarding FMD sero-surveillance and for FMD vaccine induced antibody response. I am sure the document will help to strengthen the control programme in a long way.

I congratulate the Directors and Scientists of ICAR-NIVEDI and ICAR-Directorate of Foot and Mouth Disease (DFMD) for taking initiatives to prepare this bulletin to be used in FMDCP of the Country.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Authors would like to express their sincere gratitude to Secretary DARE and Director General, ICAR, Ministry of Agriculture & Farmer`s Welfare, for his constant guidance and support in bringing out this bulletin on sampling plan for FMD CP

It is to place on record our acknowledgement to Deputy Director General (Animal Science) for his valuable suggestions and moral support in bringing out this bulletin on sampling plan for FMDCP.

Our special thanks are due to Department of Animal husbandry, dairying and Fisheries, Ministry of Agriculture & Farmer`s Welfare, Government of India, New Delhi for their encouragement in planning to bring this bulletin.

Authors thank all the Scientists of ICAR-NIVEDI and ICAR-DFMD for their inputs in bringing this bulletin.

We also thank our research fellows working in Spatial Epidemiology lab of ICAR-NIVEDI for their hard work in programming and technical assistance in generating sampling plan

FMD pre and post vaccination Seromonitoring

INTRODUCTION

Foot and mouth disease (FMD) is one of the most contagious viral diseases known, with devastating socio economic impacts. Vaccination is one of the most important tools to combat FMD. Since many factors can influence the effectiveness of vaccination against FMD, the programmes must be monitored continuously to identify any failings and to ensure sustained control of the disease.

Demonstrating the impact of vaccination programmes on the disease burden helps to justify the vaccination cost, while identification of weaknesses in the vaccination programme enables improvements to be put in place. Very large sums of public and private money can be wasted on ineffective vaccination programmes, and farmers and other livestock stakeholders can become very discouraged about the prospects for FMD control.

Monitoring of vaccination programmes and of population immunity are important components of the surveillance system for countries embarking on vaccine-based FMD control (progressive control pathway for FMD [PCP-FMD] stages 2–3). They are also a requirement for those seeking official recognition by the World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE) of endorsed national control programmes or national or zonal freedom from FMD with vaccination (PCP-FMD stages 3 and beyond).

Estimating the immunity of the population targeted for protection by vaccination is the core of PVM, as it is a key indicator of how well vaccination has been carried out and whether or not protection against infection is likely. Serological tests that detect antibodies directed towards the virus structural proteins (SP tests) are suited to measuring protective antibody responses induced by vaccination. (Foot and Mouth Disease Vaccination and post vaccination monitoring guidelines, Editor Samia Metwally & Susanne Münstermann, Published by FAO and OIE, 2016)

Seromonitoring of FMD Control Programme (FMDCP)

A bi-annual vaccination based FMD Control Programme (FMDCP) was initiated by the Government of India since 2004, initially covering 54 districts (Phase I) in the country. This involves 6 monthly FMD vaccinations, with a trivalent O, A and Asia1 vaccine, of all cattle and buffaloes for protection against FMD. Serum samples before vaccination and 21 to 30 days post vaccination are collected by the respective state AH departments and tested by ICAR-DFMD for estimation of level of serotype specific antibodies. Due to initial success data generated by this institute, additional 167 districts (another 80-90 million cattle and buffalo) were included under the programme in 2010-11 (Phase II), and 110 districts were included since 2013-14 (Phase III), and 38 districts in 2015-16 (Phase IV). The states of West Bengal, Chhattisgarh, Himachal Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh and Uttarakhand are under FMDCP since 2017 (Phase V). In phase VI, rest of the states were covered. Currently, this programme covers entire country.

The Liquid Phase Blocking ELISA for monitoring of herd immunity following each round of vaccination was used till the year 2015. Subsequently, a solid phase competitive ELISA (SPCE) in four dilution format was developed for the seromonitoring activity under FMDCP. The SPCE is suitable for mass serology and is routinely used in World Reference Laboratory (WRL) on FMD, Pirbright, UK. Further, the specificity of the SPCE was reported by many research publications to be considerably higher than that of the liquid phase blocking ELISA and almost equivalent to that of the virus neutralisation test. It is easier to use, more robust and specific, and therefore offers an improvement for FMD virus specific antibody detection. Therefore, the SPCE developed at ICAR-DFMD was applied for determination anti-FMDV antibody status.

Sampling Strategy currently followed for Post-vaccination Seromonitoring

In India, the districts are subdivided into talukas/blocks and further into villages. The villages are considered to be one epidemiological unit (Epi-unit). For sero-conversion study, two-stage random sampling strategy has been followed. In the first stage, 10 villages (each village is a single epi-unit) in each district were selected using randomization calculator, in such a way that each taluka was represented for sampling. In the second stage, 20 bovines were selected (above >24 months of age) from each village for sampling (before and after the vaccination) following a simple random sampling technique. The whole process of sample collection (pre-vaccination and post-vaccination sampling) was repeated again during each round of vaccination through randomized calculator. However, it is important to note that that during each round of vaccination, the villages in a district have been changed to collect the pre- and post-vaccination serum samples. Therefore, this strategy has been providing a clear immunity figure of the whole state or country. Further, this strategy would also provide the efficacy of vaccine and vaccination. A guideline for sample collection has been provided by DADF, GoI to the respective States of India.

During pre- and post-vaccination sample collection, meta-data related to demographic information is also being collected. Since, experts of the OIE FMD Mission to India, suggested to collect the meta-data related age of the animal, sex, breed, farm size, farm type, farm location, vaccination status, vaccine used, etc., a new guideline would be issued by DADF, GoI to the respective States of India.

In India, the above post-vaccination sampling strategy has been designed to determine the efficacy of both vaccine and vaccination programme. However, the experts of the OIE FMD Mission to India feel to change the sampling strategy in order to provide a clear picture of the population immunity. Considering the recommendation, ICAR-NIVEDI in collaboration with ICAR-DFMD developed a new post vaccination seromonitoring sampling strategy

Recommended Two -stage sampling plan for Pre and Post vaccination seromonitoring

All form of epidemiological investigations requires the scientific sampling plan for collection of data on health problems includes serum samples in surveillance or monitoring in a specific population. Estimation of frequency of disease is a prerequisite to establish the disease control program, hence sampling the populations in order to estimate the disease frequency is common task for epidemiologists. In sampling, we ensure that animals are typical of the target population that the estimate of disease frequency is unbiased and precise (low standard error). Simple random sampling, systematic or stratified random samplings are the most commonly used sampling methods in which the animal is sampling unit, provides the precise estimates of disease frequency.

The use of two-stage sampling has evolved to meet surveillance or monitoring objectives for two reasons. First, list of frames of animals for randomized sample selection do not typically exist at a regional or national level, but the list frames of herds or villages can be developed and maintained more readily.

The objectives of seromonitoring of FMD in India

1. To provide the Sampling Scheme for estimation of total number of animals to be sampled, total number of villages (epi units) to be selected, number of animals within the village to be sampled and location of villages for pre seromonitoring of FMD in India.
2. To use the same sampling scheme for post vaccination monitoring to estimate the unbiased and robust estimate of protection levels of FMD in India.

In this scheme we employed stratified random sampling with district as stratification variable for buffalo and cattle population in different states. The input requirements of sampling plan were (1). animal level prevalence of unprotection ($1-P(\text{protection})$) is 20% is used as median value of unprotection levels across the different age group of animals, (2) cluster or village level prevalence of 20%, 10% and 5% for large , medium and small states were used and (3) sensitivity of 90% and specificity of 100% of diagnostic tests. Two -stage stratified random sampling plan was generated at 95% confidence using in-house developed epi-calculator https://nivedi.res.in/Nadres_v2/Epical/stratified/random_sampling.php. Sampling plan will provide the guidelines for selecting villages and its location like block, district and state level information along with livestock population, number of animals to be sampled within village, and proportion of buffaloes and cattle to be sampled in each selected village. The summary of sampling plan generated using two-stage stratified random sampling scheme is presented in Table 1.

Note: The proportion of samples collected from each village need to be distributed among three age categories viz; 6-12 months, 12-24 months and >24 months at a ratio of 5:4:1

Collection and transport of serum samples

- Serum should be collected using a sterile needle and syringe
- At least 2ml of serum should be submitted to the testing laboratory and for that 4-8 ml whole blood needs to be collected without anticoagulant.
- The blood is usually collected from the jugular vein
- After collection, the sample should be allowed to stand in a cool area, out of direct sunlight for at least 15 minutes to allow clot formation
- Serum should be separated before submission to the laboratory.
- The sample should be centrifuged or, if this is not available, stand the sample in an upright position overnight in a cool box or refrigerator
- Place serum into a plain, sterile tube and send to the laboratory under cool condition
- If dispatch to a laboratory is delayed, serum samples should be frozen and stored at - 20 °C
- Samples should be accompanied by proper epidemiological data sheet

Salient points to be considered as recommended by OIE

- Animals are sampled at two different points in time to assess the changes in population immunity. Sampling at time 0 (time of vaccination) and again after 21-28 days post vaccination to assess increase in the level of population immunity. It should be noted that, if such double sampling is carried out, it is not essential that the same animals are sampled in the two rounds. However, in a particular round, pre and post vac samples should be collected from same animals

- In general, estimating the immune status at individual animal level is recommended whenever vaccination is carried out in countries qualified at PCP stage 2 or 3, while the estimation of immune status at epi-unit level may be recommended at higher stages of PCP when expectation of virus circulation is low and a country is official status of freedom with or without vaccination.
- In the new sampling frame, population immunity at individual animals are followed
- When a vaccination programme is regularly implemented, there is a direct association between immunity level and age. Therefore, stratification by age is recommended. Stratification by age will facilitate the interpretation of the test results. Each of those different age groups should be considered a different subpopulation
- If estimation of the level of immunity is restricted to only one specific age category, it is suggested that the age category one to two years old be sampled, which will probably include animals already vaccinated many times and may provide some insight into the immunity levels in younger age classes (likely to be lower) and older age classes (likely to be higher).
- In theory, animals less than 6 months old could also be sampled, but, in practice, usually only two or three age categories are evaluated, namely 6–12 months old, 12–24 months old and more than 24 months old. Should the survey be restricted only to those age groups eligible for vaccination, the six months and under category will be excluded and sample sizes remain unchanged for the three age groups considered.
- Suggested values for the expected proportion of animals with a specific level of antibodies in the following
 - a) age groups:
 - age 6–12 months – expected proportion 70%;
 - age 12–24 months – expected proportion 80%;
 - age > 24 months – expected proportion 90%.
 - b) Allowable standard error – 10%.
 - c) Level of confidence – 95%.
